

The Advent Wreath

Advent is the time before Christmas, starting around the beginning of December and ending on Christmas Eve. It is a time of preparation for Christmas.

Some Christian people believe it is also a time for prayer and a chance to reflect on the times they have made the right choices and the times they could have made better decisions.

Making the Wreath

The Advent wreath is made from evergreen branches which are twisted to form a circle. Then, four candles are put around the wreath and often a fifth candle is placed in the middle. One candle is lit each Sunday before Christmas Day.

In some Christian churches, there are three purple candles, one pink candle and a white one. On the first two Sundays of Advent, purple candles are lit. On the third week, the pink candle is lit on Gaudete Sunday to represent joy. The white candle is lit on Christmas Eve as a symbol of Jesus being born. It is called the Christ Candle.

The First Advent Wreath

Wreaths have been used as Christmas decorations for many years but the first Advent wreath was thought to have been created in 1839 by a German man named Johann Wichern. He was the founder of a children's home.

The children were often asking him when it was Christmas. So, he decided to light a white candle each Sunday and a smaller red candle for each day in between as a means to show the children how many days were left until Christmas Day.

The History of Advent Wreaths

Wreaths have been used in winter solstice celebrations for hundreds of years. People would get together to celebrate the winter solstice and welcome the longer days of sunlight.

A wheel would be laid down and covered with evergreen branches and candles. This represented a circle of light in the dark days. Prayers would be said to the god of light to turn the wheel of the Earth back towards the Sun to make the days longer. Pagan people called this time of celebration Yule. Later, wreaths were used as religious symbols during Advent.

The History of Advent Wreaths

Wreaths have been used during celebrations for the winter solstice for hundreds of years, particularly by people with pagan beliefs. Pagans would gather to celebrate the winter solstice by welcoming the lengthened days and increased hours of sunlight which were to come in the new year.

To celebrate the event, a wheel would be laid down and covered with evergreen branches and candles. This was symbolic of a circle of light in the dark days. Prayers were offered to the god of light to turn the wheel of the Earth back towards the Sun to make the days longer and warmer.

Pagan people called this time of celebration Yule, which was also a celebration of the birth of the god of the sun.

Following the death of Jesus and the subsequent 'birth' of Christianity, wreaths were used as symbolic decorations for the time approaching Christmas Day.

The first Advent wreath was thought to have been created in 1839 by a man named Johann Wichern. He lived in Hamburg, Germany and was the founder of a children's home.

After the children repeatedly asked when it would be Christmas, he lit a white candle each Sunday and a smaller red candle for each day in-between to count down the days until Christmas.

Symbolism of Advent Wreaths

Advent wreaths are made using the leaves of evergreen plants, which have symbolic meanings. Some believe the wreath is circular because it represents the seasons ending, the beginning of another year and the continuation of life. Others believe that the circle represents God's everlasting love.

Some people believe holly, used in an Advent wreath, represents the crown of thorns Jesus wore when he was crucified on Good Friday. Others believe that pine and holly are symbolic of immortality.

On a practical level, the candles represent light in the darkness as the flames illuminate the dark winter months. On a spiritual level, lighting the candles represents Jesus entering the world of darkness and bringing love to everyone in their times of sorrow and misery.

Christian people use the white candle in the centre to represent Jesus being born pure and being the Light of the World, guiding people from the darkness and to the Lord's love.
